Improper withholdings

Of the public domain

Of what the FBI itself disclosed

While from the time and cost involved I have suspended providing samples of the ludicrous and unjustifiable withholdings that permeate the JFK (and King) assassination records as provided to me and as the FBI's historical case disclosures, on occasion and for particular reasons I do provide illustrations.

Attached is a Domestic Intelligence Division "informative note" from 62-109060-6007. The name withheld, obviously from the content within the public domain, is that of Edgar Eugene Bradley, a dubious character who launched a campaign to have J. Edgar Hoover elected President of the United States.

While I have recollection of Hoover's ambition, I cite instead William Sullivan's book, which I presume you read.

Of course I do not allege a connection between Bradley and Hoover's campaigner and the withholding of his name when it should not have been withheld under any standard, but this does indicate how the FBI needlessly brings suspicion of ulterior motive up by it harassing in the processing of FOIA records.

In countless pages of other records Bradley's name is not withheld.
